Charities Proceeds To Be Redistributed Delegates Chosen

by PAUL BANNERMAN
SEC Reporter

The SEC has voted to redistribute the proceeds of the Combined Charities Campaign that will be held on campus soon.

As in previous years, 50% of the profits of the Combined Charities Campaign will be given to WUSC (World University Services of Canada). In addition 10% of the profits will be donated to each of the following: Montreal Association for Multiple Sclerosis, the Heart Fund, Cancer Aid, the Muscular Dystrophy Association (towards a nursing home), and to CUSO (Canadian University Services Overseas).

CUSO is a relatively new organization at this university. It was created by the Canadian universities and several organizations in June 1961, to co-ordinate, develop, and promote opportunities for overseas service for Canadian graduates.

Delegates

Council also appointed a number of students as McGill delegates to various conferences to be held in the near future. Richard Kaiser and Paul Lamy were chosen to represent the University at the annual West Point Conference. Harold "Sonny" Gordon, Nigel Swami, and Keith Kirkman were picked to attend the Manitoba Conference on "Asia and the Commonwealth".

Manon Turbide, Chairman of NFCUS at McGill, reported on the Regional Conference held last weekend at Marianopolis College. Amongst other items of business, the Conference voted to recommend changes in the electoral law so that students in residence are able to vote. At present, they are unable to do so. Also NFCUS will present a brief to the Quebec government concerning income tax deduction of school fees.

Forge Marks Anniversary

Forge, Canada's oldest student literary magazine, celebrates its 25th anniversary this year. In celebration, a special issue is being prepared, including non-fiction prose, art work, poetry and drama.

The magazine was founded in 1938, at which time it consisted mainly of short stories and a small amount of poetry. The introduction to the first issue stated that it would accept "interesting and agreeably written" articles.

All through the war Forge reflected the bewilderment and turmoil of ideas of the younger generation; it finally succumbed to the austerity of the period and came out on mimeographed paper. The veterans returned to McGill, and took over the running of the magazine when all freshmen were moved to Macdonald College in 1943.

For many years a style of stark realism predominated, influenced by war experiences, but this was gradually diluted by an influx of western Montrealers who had a rather self-conscious literary style all their own.

Experimental Attitude

For the last few years, Forge has been adopting new ideas in technique and style, taking an increasingly experimental attitude. Notable contributors who have helped to bring it to a high standard have been Irving Layton, and D.G. Jones from the University of Toronto.

Pakistan To Host WUSC Delegates; Applications Asked

"The Influence of the Orient and the Occident in Pakistan" is the theme of the 14th annual World University Service of Canada Seminar to be held in Pakistan during the summer of 1963. Two scholarships to the Seminar are available to McGill students, and applications can be obtained from John at the Union Tuck Shop.

The program will feature an examination of the religious, cultural, sociological, scientific, political, historical, and economic aspects of the development of Pakistan. Participants will be able to pursue their specific academic interests during the periods provided for field trips and small group or individual visits.

The Conference will commence with an orientation session during the last week of June, 1963, and will end during the second week in August. Delegates will travel by air to Europe and thence to Karachi.

Program

The program will include visits to centers of interest, and a residential seminar period, featuring lectures, plenary sessions, and panel discussions led by the Canadian and Pakistani staff members. Thirty-five Canadian students and five Canadian professors will be participating, along with an equal number of Pakistanis.

If past seminars are any indication, there is no doubt that the seminar will contribute greatly to the further development of understanding between students of both countries on both a personal and an academic level and should provide valuable experience to the individual participants.

The deadline for applications has been extended to Monday, November 26. Applicants must be either Canadian citizens or permanent residents in Canada.

Attention Bandmen!

All bandmen, including those who have left their uniforms in the Band Room, are to return their equipment today, tomorrow, and Friday between 1:15 pm at the Band Room in the Sir Arthur Currie Gym.

Pre-Shrunk Heads For Sale

Relief is fast approaching for those students who have "lost their heads" worrying about term papers, Christmas exams, etc. Treasure Van 1962 will be supplying genuine imitation shrunken heads tailored to measure by the Apuzi Indians of Ecuador.

The heads, a feature of this year's sale, will be rolling along with the rest of the Treasure Van, to the Students' Union Lounge next Monday, November 26, and will remain until November 30. The handicraft sale will be open daily from 10 am to 10 pm. Many find this sale of handicrafts the perfect solution of what to buy for whom at Christmas.

Treasure Van is a display sale of international handicrafts organized annually in each Canadian University by local committees of the World University Service of Canada.

Profits from sales help finance the International Programme of Action, administered by the WUS Secretariat in Geneva. This programme is devoted to helping students in other countries with "self-help" projects in the areas of health, lodging, living, and educational equipment.

The principal aims of Treasure Van are to develop an interest in the work of native craftsmen in different parts of the world; to enable these craftsmen to raise the standard of living of themselves and their families by providing a market for their goods; to draw attention to the international activities of WUS; to raise funds to promote the work of WUS, including helping overseas students in Canada, providing scholarships for international exchanges, and assisting the development of universities in Asia and Africa.

International Bazaar

The international bazaar was originated by a woman who had spent seven years in a concentration camp. When released,

by RICHARD DECKELBAUM
Treasure Van Chairman

she vowed to work on some project that would contribute to world peace and understanding.

Ethel Mulvaney learned of WUS and how its ideas were closely allied with her own. She approached WUSC with the idea of a Van stocked with projects of all nations touring Canadian universities. The first truck went out in 1952 with an all India display.

This year 26 countries are represented. One third of the goods are on sale this year for the first time. Spears from Kenya are available for those wishing to produce their own shrunken heads. Other African goods vary from camel saddles to ebony carvings of the Masai tribe of East Africa.

Jewelry, always popular, will include something to suit each individual's taste. Due to last year's heavy demand the stock of Siamese and Indian silverwork has been greatly increased. Mexico will once again feature sterling silver most of which is set with many of the colorful natural Mexican stones.

Pre-filled Wineskins

The many disappointed milk-drinkers who tried in vain to secure wineskins at last year's sale (they were sold out in two days) will rejoice at the fact that there are four hundred and twenty five on sale this year. As a gesture of good will ten will be pre-filled with Borden's milk and two will be awarded each day.

In charge of the sale are Richard Deckelbaum, Chairman; Lorne Ruby, Vice-Chairman; Morty Black, publicity director; and Natalie Lipton, sales staff director.

Gifts are priced from six cents to $235.99. It is hoped that everyone and his friend will visit and examine the varied displays. No one is coerced into buying but practically everyone does. The objective this year is $7,000 which is a $1,100 increase over last year's record-breaking sale. Because of the many more goods presented this year the objective should easily be reached. Remember, two heads are better than one.

The WUS Scholarships

The McGill World University Service Committee has announced that the deadline for scholarship applications for the fourteenth annual seminar to be held this summer in Pakistan is to be extended to Monday Nov. 26. The extension has been necessitated somewhat by the low number of applicants for the two scholarships available, a rather unusual fact considering the nature of the seminar and the country in which it is being held.

It will be extremely unfortunate if McGill will not have a high calibre of representation. Its delegates will be acting not only as representatives of their university, but as ambassadors of their country. They will be called upon to interpret their culture and heritage to the Pakistani in a spirit of scholarship and an attitude of understanding. Accordingly they ought to be students of high scholastic achievement, knowledgeable in campus and national affairs, people of character and integrity. We are certain McGill has such students among its members. We hope they will take advantage of this unique opportunity.

The theme of the seminar is "The Influence of the Orient and the Occident on Pakistan" and will involve lectures, discussion and field trips dealing with the historical, cultural, political, and economic aspects of that country. In addition each participant will be given the chance to pursue his or her special field of endeavour. Moreover, the seminar this year is of particular relevance.

The violent Chinese-Indian conflict has again focused attention on an area of the world containing more than a half of the world's population, an area emerging in the twentieth century to seize its rightful force at the international counsel tables. The problems of Pakistan are not unique to that country; they permeate the sub-continent. Indeed the entire territory that we name Asia. They are the problems of poverty, illiteracy, sickness, the problems of a nation facing the present but tied intimately to a long and intense past. But Pakistan also faces difficulties that are the product of its unique religious, cultural and political heritage. Created in division, nurtured in communal riots, weakened by border conflicts, this Islamic state has been a miracle of survival, from which we can learn much.

ISA - Asia Week

The International Students' Association of McGill University has arranged an Asia Week to be held November 26 to December 1, 1962. The program will consist of cultural, social and educational events as well as exhibitions of handicrafts and paintings from many of the Asian countries represented at McGill.

Essentially, it will be a week filled with a myriad of interesting and exciting events. Monday night will be highlighted by a panel discussion on "Communism and Asian Countries", to be held in Moyse Hall at 7:30 pm. The Variety Show on Tuesday evening will be a colourful display of dances, songs, etc. from Arabia, China, India, Israel, Japan, Malaya, and Pakistan. Wednesday's program will be a double feature with a fashion show in which models from the Asian countries will present their national dress, and a Japanese film, "Ikiru". His Excellency, C. S. Jha, High Commissioner for India to Canada will address the audience in Redpath Hall on "Asian Countries and the United Nations" on Thursday evening. On Friday, a Games night will be held, with the grand closing dance scheduled for Saturday evening.

Also the various national clubs on campus have arranged their dinners on successive nights of the week to be held before the major evening program. The dinners planned are Pakistani, Indian, Arabian, Chinese, and Japanese.

The various committees under the inspired chairmanship of I.S.A. President, Saeed Mirza, have literally been labouring day and night to present an interesting and truly international week of activities. The Asian students have given their full support to this endeavour; it is hoped that the campus at large will join them in this most worthwhile undertaking.

McGill Of Yesteryear and Today

Our Ginkgo In Jeopardy

The majestic tree that stands in front of McGill's Arts Building is not yet a hundred years old and yet it belongs to a race that has experienced more history than any other living tree. Relatives of Ginkgo biloba were abundant on earth during the Carboniferous period (350 million years ago). Fossil imprints of leaves of the Maidenhair Tree as it is commonly called, have been discovered in rocks that are greater than 120 million years old.

All of the paleobotanical evidence that has been accumulated suggests that this tree has endured without alteration for more than 120 million years. Until the early period of this century the tree was unknown in the wild state and it had been supposed that it had become extinct. Survival had only been assured by Buddhist priests in China and Japan, who considering the tree sacred, had protected and cultivated it in temple gardens. It was this interesting situation that led scientists to refer to the tree as a "living fossil".

The history of the Ginkgo is impressive but there is also a long story to tell about McGill's own Ginkgo tree. Our specimen was probably among the first to be planted on this continent. David Pearce Penhallow, the first MacDonald Professor of Botany, visited Yezo which is now the Japanese island of Hokkaido at the turn of the century. He was probably one of McGill's first Visiting Professors and taught botany at the University of Sapporo. The Japanese sent a Ginkgo specimen in 1904 and he planted it in front of the Arts Building at the end of the long avenue of trees that had been set out by Dr. John William Dawson and near the tomb of James McGill. Since that time the tree has flourished as its present stature attests. Thousands of McGill students, graduates and staff as well as countless thousands of the Montreal public and visitors have admired the tree. Dr. R.D. Gibbs, the present Gardenmaster, included a photograph of McGill's Ginkgo as the frontispiece in his text-

This is the second in a series of articles on the anticipated construction of a plaza in front of the Arts Building.

by

Dr. PAUL F. MAYCOCK
Associate Professor of Botany and Curator of the Herbarium.

book of botany that sold thousands of copies throughout the world.

There are those that believe this tree should cease to exist, as well as a large group of other trees nearby that were planted by Dr. Dawson, so that about a fifth of the Campus can be filled with a pile of concrete and rubble with "a formalized garden (that) makes provision for 34 (trees) in neat symmetrical rows". This envisaged concrete plaza with its "four depressions for flowers and plants and four small, rectangular (and doubtless polluted) ponds", will have to be a marvel to justify this desecration.

There is one rather unpleasant feature of the Ginkgo that has not been mentioned. The ripened seeds resemble a small yellow plum and when they fall to the ground and deteriorate they create a foul odour that resembles that of butyric acid or rancid butter. It has been at other times otherwise described. This seems to be a rather appropriate point to mention in reference to the anticipated piazza.

It can only be hoped that the stink raised by the students, the staff and the public of Montreal will exceed that of the ripened seeds of the Ginkgo, on their learning of the anticipated folly that is to be perpetrated. Long life to Penhallow's Ginkgo Tree!

Admissions Officer Discusses Purpose Of Business School

R. Saalbach, Admissions Officer of the Wharton School of Business, will lecture in W-120 from 1 to 2 pm today. His topic will be Business Administration.

Wharton, an affiliate of the University of Pennsylvania, is one of the oldest graduate schools of business in America. As its representative, Saalbach will outline the admissions procedure, the requirements, and the courses available at Wharton, and attempt to clarify any questions concerning a master's degree in business administration. His aim is to introduce students to the purpose and aims of a business school with reference to the various aspects of Wharton.

The discussion will be concluded with a question-and-answer period.

SCOPE Will Present Singer Gilles Vigneault

Gilles Vigneault, familiar French-Canadian singer, will appear at Redpath Hall on Tuesday, November 27 at 8:30 pm. He is being introduced by the SCOPE Committee, which is attempting to acquaint McGill and English Montreal with this entertainer and to allow him to impress his personality upon a new following.

Vigneault is so well known among French Canadians that his concert at the Gesu Theatre last year was sold out well in advance. His performance at the Palais de Montreal in Quebec City last month was filled to capacity. This does not mean that his appeal is only to French Canadians.

He has absorbed his own culture and in his songs about the rugged life of the old-timers, he depicts their "jole de vivre" with much gusto. He does not concentrate on the songs of lesser personages, and has a great deal of sophisticated spice to offer.

Vigneault is a minstrelling lyric poet who captures his audiences not by the purity of his voice, for that it is not, but by intense feeling which his whole personality projects. He is definitely theatrical in his presentation, which enhances his charm.

Self-Explanatory

This concert is the first in which Gilles Vigneault will make before an English audience. He will introduce most of the program in English, while the remainder will not necessitate explanation, since these poem-songs are self-explanatory. He will be accompanied by piano, flute, violin, drum and bass.

Tickets for the evening with this poet "chansonnier" of the true French tradition are available at the Union Box Office at the special student price of $1.

Folk Music Club Presents Concert; Gauthier To Star

The McGill Folk Music Society is presenting a concert Friday night at 8:45 pm in Moyse Hall.

Special guest star will be the popular French Canadian Claude Gauthier. This will be his second concert in a week, his first being held last Saturday at Plateau Hall. Gauthier is well known not only in Montreal, but also in the Southern United States where he has recently been on tour.

Student Talent

The principal student talent to be presented will include Sarita Elman, Elyse Weinberg, Peter Usher, Peter Welden, Jack Nilsson, Bill Kaufman, and Gillian Topham, most of whom are veterans of previous concerts.

As well as these amateur performers, six professionals will be present. They include David Lamb, a British balladeer; Michel Choquette of Café André; the Trio Canadienne; and banjo-picker Gerry Goodfriend.

Admission is 50 cents and tickets are available at the Union Box Office.

Margaret Mead's New Guinea Film Shown At Redpath

The Sociology and Anthropology Society is presenting a lunch hour program of two of Margaret Mead's anthropological films on New Guinea today at 1 pm in the Redpath Museum Lecture Theatre. Dr. Richard Salisbury, Associate Professor of Sociology and Anthropology will introduce the films.

The two films, "Childhood Rivalry in Bali and New Guinea" and "First Days in the Life of a New Guinea Baby" are part of a series of Dr. Mead's documentations of Melanesian culture, within a framework of culture and personality.

Coffee Hour

Immediately following the films, a "Get Acquainted Coffee Hour" will be held in room 5 of the Redpath Museum, near the Lecture theatre. Professor Salisbury, who recently returned from an extensive field trip to New Guinea, will be there to discuss his field experience informally.

Applications are still open for the following positions on the Sociology and Anthropology Society executive: social convenor, membership chairman, and publications editor. Interested students must apply to the president, Cecile Kallifon, Room 360, Arts Building, no later than Nov. 27.

Medical Entrance

Dr. Lloyd Stevenson, Dean of Medicine, will address the Pre-Med Society on the necessary requirements for entrance to that faculty today in B250 at 1 pm.

Redmen On Rampage; Trim Georgians 77-46

by STEVE GRUBER & TIM STEWART

In a sometimes exciting, at other times lacklustre basketball game at the Currie Gym last night, the Redmen overwhelmed the Sir George Williams Senior squad with a powerful fast break and some tight defensive work to squash the Georgians 77-46.

The individual scoring star of the fray was Sy Luterman, who came back to haunt his old teammates and hit for 22 points. Sy's fantastic outside "bombing" in the first half kept the Georgian defensive alignment off balance and helped set up other Redmen scoring forays.

Special mention must also be made of the McGill defensive stars, Jim Berwick and Ian Monteith, who each pulled down 16 rebounds and held opposition scoring to a minimum, as well holding Bob Habert to a mere eight points. Berwick was also a big gun on offense, hitting for 16 points, the same as Captain Jack Walker, while Monteith rang up exactly half that sum.

The result of the encounter, however, is not as obvious as it may seem, for there are still many kinks in the Redmen attack which must be ironed out before December's big game with Assumption University, holders of the Western Division crown of the O.Q.A.A., while the Red and White won the Eastern Division last year.

The next game in the schedule is against the University of Montreal Carabins next Tuesday. This affair should serve as a tune-up for the and-coming Ontario-Quebec action December 8.

Juniors Lose

Beforehand the Junior varsity lost a very close game to their S.G.W.U. counterparts 49-44. After trailing 32-25 at the half they crept up until with two minutes left the score was 46-44. However, Sir George resorted to stalling tactics, until suddenly Ron Otto, their best player all night, hit for two. Then he capitalized on a foul shot and the game was over.

Actually it was surprising that the score was so close, as McGill's shooting was very poor. Only 37% of foul shots and an extremely low 21% of shots in play were sunk. However injuries and illness can provide some excuse with Thomas, Munzar, Kaback and Boardman still recuperating.

Aquabelles Set For Big Swim Currie Pool Scene Of Battle

A team of ten McGill coeds in top form will dive, dart, or dog-paddle their way through the chlorinated aqua of the Sir Arthur Currie Pool on Friday night at 7 and again on Saturday morning at 10. At this time, they will be taking part in a heated contention with the Universities of Western Ontario, and Toronto, for the swimming supremacy of the intercollegiate loop.

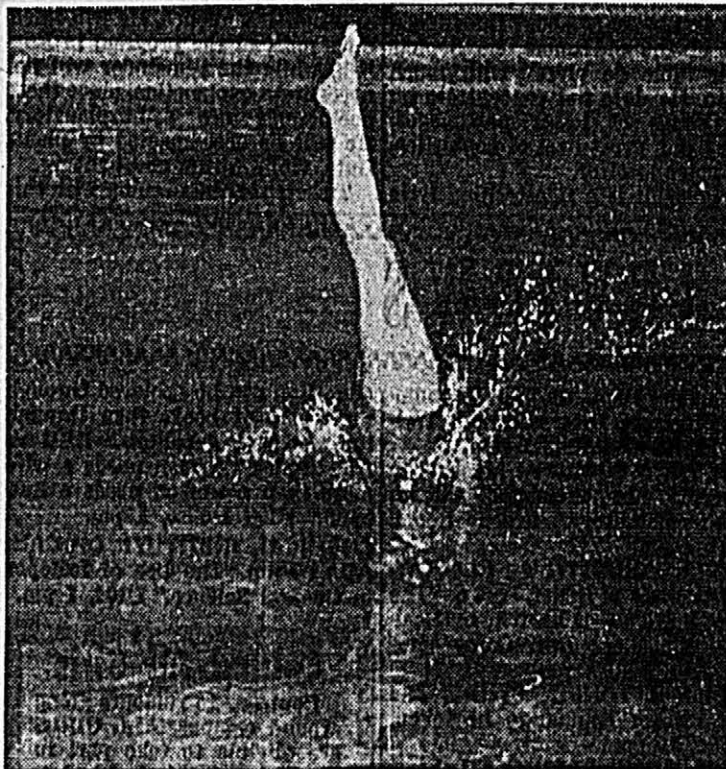

The sudden death battle will feature such accomplished stars as Ellen Purdie and Judy Irwin (who placed first among the Canadian entries at the Invitational Meet held at Western at the beginning of this month) Miss Purdie gleaned her collegiate experience in active competition for the Red and White last year, specialising in perfection, and is entered in the diving and synchronized swim events. Diving with her will be Judy Irwin, another near-professional amateur.

Fans will have the opportunity to admire the talent and grace of Ruth Gorden, an up and coming young contender for the collegiate crown who will go through the intricacies of the synchronized show with Ellen Purdie.

Speed Events

Saturday sees the speedsters swim their studied stuff. Featured on the eight race card and driven to peak performance by Coach Dubrule, Ingrid de Baintner, Liz Barker, Chris Gyllooy, Carol Hobbs, Jody Longstaff, Jane Wilson, and Margo Wray will strut their paces in what will assuredly be a heated battle against the other Universities, and will hopefully be no battle at all.
